FROM DAY ONE

EveryDay Support From Day One™ can guide you through the reauthorization process to help avoid potential treatment interruptions

Reauthorization requirements vary by health plan. For enrolled patients, EveryDay Support can help determine plan-specific requirements.

Consider enrolling your patients into EveryDay Support, if you haven't already.

Quick Tips

Reauthorization paperwork*

Reauthorization requirements may include:

- Pathology reports and/or molecular testing reports documenting BRAF alteration
- Rationale for treatment continuation such as documented tumor response or disease stabilization
- Previous prior authorization approval letter

EveryDay Support and our specialty pharmacy partners can help determine plan-specific reauthorization criteria.

Reauthorization timing

Plan ahead to avoid interruptions in your patient's treatment:

- Typically, reauthorization is required every 6 to 12 months, but is subject to the individual requirements of each patient's health insurance plan
- When scheduling patient visits and scans, keep the reauthorization deadline in mind to ensure recent imaging results can be included in the reauthorization submission

Patient Navigators at EveryDay Support can provide reminders to your office for enrolled patients when reauthorization is approaching.

Important note: If your patient is not enrolled in EveryDay Support, we will not be able to provide patient-specific support. Consider enrolling your patient now: at www.everydaysupport.com/hcp/enroll-now.

BRAF=B-Raf proto-oncogene, serine/threonine kinase.

*The completion and submission of documentation to the health insurance plan is the responsibility of the health care provider and their patients/legal guardians.

EveryDay Support Can Help Navigate the Denial and Appeals Process

If your reauthorization request is denied, EveryDay Support may be able to help with the appeal process and offer a treatment interruption program, if needed, to help your patient continue treatment.

EveryDay Support can help determine the reason for the denial so that you may determine the appropriate level of appeal. The levels of appeal may include:

LEVEL 1	LEVEL 2	LEVEL 3
File an appeal letter We can provide resources as you prepare an appeal submission, based on your patient's health insurance plan requirements.	Request a peer-to-peer review A peer-to-peer review allows you to discuss clinical rationale with a medical reviewer.	Ask for an external review If the denial is upheld, you can ask for an external review by independent, accredited medical professionals.

Contact your Patient Navigator for more information about each appeal level.

Visit the Resources tab on www.everydaysupport.com/hcp for considerations regarding composing letters of medical necessity and appeal letters, as well as sample templates.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Do my patients have to re-enroll in financial assistance programs each year?

A: Patients who are enrolled in our financial assistance programs will automatically be re-enrolled for the subsequent year, if they still qualify.

Q: How long does the reauthorization process typically take?

A: This can vary by plan, but a decision can often be made within a week, once all necessary information has been submitted.

Q: Can EveryDay Support help with the reauthorization process if my patient isn't enrolled?

A: We must have consent from your patient in order to provide individualized, patient-specific access support. They must be enrolled in the program in order for us to speak with you about their health insurance plan's reauthorization process.

Q: How long does a prior authorization last?

A: This can vary by plan, but 6 to 12 months is typical. EveryDay Support can help determine when your patient will need reauthorization.
